

2011 – East Asian Postgraduate Workshop on Nanoscience and Technology

WMINST has sponsored the East Asian Postgraduate Workshop on Nanoscience and Technology held from June 15-17, 2011.

This workshop aims to set up as platform specifically for postgraduate involved in nanoscience and technology research, particularly in the East Asian region, to share their most recent work and research experience, and most importantly to seize the rare opportunity to initiate and establish international collaborative projects at the postgraduate level. Postgraduates will be able to obtain a global perspective of their research directions and often intuitions through communicating with other postgraduates working in associated disciplines of nanoscience and technology research.
